Jesus Wept

The shortest verse in the Bible teaches us some very important lessons.

John 11:35-Jesus wept.

Life is sometimes very hard to endure, with struggles arising that we are not always fully able to anticipate. Job loss, a difficult move, a bad medical diagnosis, betrayal from friends and family, and especially the heartache of death are common examples. When these things hit us, it is okay to grieve. Jesus teaches us that tears can be an appropriate response to the heartache of life.

The passage also shows us that we do not have to weep alone. In the context of John 11, the family and friends of Lazarus are grieving deeply for their loss. One of the great blessings is others to encourage us and share in our grief when we face trials (Romans 12:15). We can encourage each other with the promises of God's Word (1 Thessalonians 4:13-18). There is also great comfort in knowing that Jesus fully understands our pain, and joins us in it.
